Use this guide to learn how to (1) browse in the latest issue of the Economist, (2) search for articles in the journal, and (3) get the full text.

To Connect to the Economist
You can connect to the Economist online in 3 easy steps!

1. Start with the Library’s Business Research Guide:
   http://ohiodominican.libguides.com/business

2. Click on the Journals tab near the top

3. Then click on the link to the journal.

   Off campus? You will be prompted for your Library log-in: your last name + last 7 digits of ODU ID no. Need help with off-campus access? Go to www.ohiodominican.edu/library/off-campus-access

Your Options in the database Business Source Complete

You can now (a) browse the latest issue (or any other) or (b) search within the journal using this database.
To Search within the Journal

To search on a topic:
The database will put the journal in the top search box by default. All you need to do is put in your keywords that describe your topic.

To search for a specific article:
The database will put the journal in the top search box by default. All you need to do is type in the title of your article (or at least the first half of the title) and select Ti Title from the drop-down menu.

Getting the Full Text

Once you find an article and want the full text, use the Find It! Full Text Finder link

This will give you the option to get the full text of the article in another of our business databases, Business Insights: Global.
Click on the link to go to the second database and find your article listed in the results and click on the title for the full text.

Tip: You may need to look through a list of more than one article, depending on how unique the title of your article is.
